

Between
us,
A cake

Between us, A Cake

You are invited to a gathering that looks like a wedding, but isn't one.

A celebration without to-be-weds,
A ceremony without expectation,
A moment to question what we inherit,
And imagine what we could choose instead.

We come together around a cake —
not to mark a union between two people,
but to explore connection in other forms:
friendship, collectivity, uncertainty, care.

Bring yourself as you are.
Wear something that makes you feel like celebrating (or not celebrating).

If you wish, bring a gift
(a word,
an object,
a small gesture)
that speaks of union, commitment or belonging.

This is not a wedding.
This is not not a wedding.

Come. Stay. Leave. Return.
No promises required.
